Training Participation and Certification Policy

Author: Training Department | Publication date: 2026-09-01 | Document type: policy | Version: 1.0

Purpose and scope

This fictional policy is sample data for a RAG training exercise. It applies to learners enrolled in the institution's professional training courses.

Registration requirements

Students must submit a completed registration form, proof of identity, and evidence of any course prerequisites. Registration closes five working days before the course starts. Student Services confirms enrollment by email.

Attendance requirements

Students must attend at least 80% of scheduled teaching hours to qualify for a completion certificate. For a 100-hour course, this means attending at least 80 hours. Learners should notify Student Services before a planned absence.

Assessment and capstone project

Students must achieve a final assessment score of at least 70% and submit the required capstone project. Attendance alone does not qualify a student for certification. One assessment resit is available within 30 calendar days of the original assessment.

Certificate issuance

The Training Department issues digitally signed completion certificates within ten working days after all requirements have been verified. Each certificate contains a unique verification identifier, the learner name, course title, completion date, and training hours.

Corrections and external certificates

Students can request a name correction through Student Services. External certificates uploaded to a profile remain marked as unverified until the issuing organization or its verification service confirms authenticity.

Sharing and approvals

Students choose which certificates to share with potential employers. A sharing link expires after 30 calendar days and can be revoked by the student. Exceptions to attendance or assessment requirements require written approval from the Academic Director; the system must not approve exceptions automatically.
